FROM THE OUTFITTER

Our bird hunting operation is based in Los Mochis, Sinaloa, (on the northwest coast of Mexico) at the Plaza Inn Hotel & Convention Center, a five star Hotel with: three restaurants, bar, travel agency, pool, gardens, fitness room. Our Duck club, operates the biggest marshes in Sinaloa and Sonora. We have more than 150 blinds. The blinds are built with wood platforms, so the hunters stay dry. All blinds have decoys. We have concessions on 200,000 acres of marshland and hunt 23 species of waterfowl, including: black-bellied whistling duck, redhead, cinnamon teal, green winged teal, blue winged teal, gadwall, canvasback, fulvous whistling duck, ruddy duck, Mexican mottled duck, widgeon, northern shoveler, buffle head, pacific black brant, mallard, Scanp, Spreckle belly Goose, bluebill, red shoveler, cape shoveler, Australasian shoveler and golden eye in our marshes. White wing, mourning dove and blue rock pigeons are so thick on the farmland around Los Mochis that they are considered a pest by our farmers.

TESTIMONY MARTY B. PATTON

Just want to drop a note of "thanks" for the fabulous trip. Everything was first class from the hotel staff, the van drivers, the restaurant service, and the hunts. We had the trip of a lifetime. Owen's Steak House, with a great variety of meals and superb service. The dove hunts with Edgar were exactly as billed with the birds in abundance and the barrels of our guns literally smoking. Bird boys insured we had sufficient shells readily available and the cold drinks were appreciated. While my group travels regularly in pursuit of feathered quarry, the duck hunts were the best we have ever experienced in over 30 years of hunting. We hunted various locations, targeting specific species to bring home for taxidermy purposes, and were not disappointed. The Cinnamon Teal were one of the most beautiful and challenging birds we have ever hunted, zipping through the marsh at lightning speed. We are already discussing plans to return in the near future and look forward to working with your staff once again. Thanks for everything !!!
